

Thursday 1 June 2023

Suffolk Show President Elect the Bishop of Suffolk has enjoyed a packed two days - including meeting hundreds of visitors at the Church of England marquee where families enjoyed face painting, puppet shows, artwork, games and free refreshments.

Bishop Martin's duties included judging the Art Show, handing out various awards, and viewing the cattle, sheep, pig and goat display areas.

All refreshment donations at the Church marquee at Stand 602 were being given to the Addington Fund, to support struggling farming families with housing solutions, disaster relief and grants.

Bishop Martin said: "I first came to the show a few weeks after I started as bishop here, back in 2015, and it was the very best introduction to the county I could have hoped for. As we still find ourselves emerging from the disruption of the pandemic, another opportunity to be out together, and to meet friends we may not have seen for some time, is very welcome indeed. As well as fun, the show is a place to learn, whether it is about farming and animals, gardening, skills and crafts, the latest communications technology, or what it is like to ride in a flight simulator, there is no shortage of opportunities to soak up new knowledge. At the heart of the show is farming – the land, food, animals, the cycle of the seasons. We are in touch with the natural world, with the rhythms of life on which our lives depend. I believe the show is not just fun and a place to learn, but nourishment for our souls too."

We saw hundreds of people flock to our marquee to learn how they can enjoy life within a modern-day church.

The Diocese views its presence at the Suffolk Show as a time to meet with people of all ages in a more relaxed setting, and providing an opportunity for people from across the county to find out how churches offer help and hope in their communities.

Notices

General Synod Representatives: When the Revd Leslie Siu left the diocese, his seat at General Synod fell vacant. The rules say that we can ask the two candidates unelected in 2021 whether they wish to stand now. Both the Ven. Sally Gaze and the Revd John Thackray expressed their interest and Civica (who ran the 2021 election) re-ran the count using 2021's votes: the result is that the Ven. Sally Gaze is elected.
